TRIBUTES have been paid to a serviceman who died suddenly at Royal Air Force HQ at the weekend.

Senior aircraftman Darren Foster, from Chatham, collapsed at the Air Command base in Naphill, High Wycombe, on Saturday.

The 26-year-old (pictured) was rushed to hospital, where he later died.

The cause of death is unknown.

Mr Foster's Commanding Officer, Group Captain Andy Huggett, said: "Senior Aircraftman Darren Foster had very quickly become an integral part of a close-knit team, known for his reliability, dedication, loyalty and keen sense of humour.

"A fun-loving and popular individual who took advantage of every aspect of military life, Darren loved military history and was keen to serve in Afghanistan.

"He was a highly respected friend and colleague and our prayers and thoughts are with his family and girlfriend at this incredibly sad time."

Mr Foster joined the RAF in January 2009 and was posted to JFACHQ after he graduated as a personnel clerk in September.

He received the best student award for his course.

His main ambition was to serve in Afghanistan. Mr Foster had a knowledge of military history and enjoyed learning about the latest operational and exercise activity.

He had also recently returned from France where he visited the D-Day beaches in Normandy to improve his own military knowledge on the sacrifices made by his fellow countrymen in World War Two.

New NHS boss optimistic for future of trust

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

NEW NHS Medway boss Mark Devlin has vowed to improve efficiency at the trust despite taking on the role with the service heading into a time of financial uncertainty.

With the coalition Government talking of making large-scale spending cuts to the NHS and other public services, the new chief executive said his team can meet the difficulties head on.

"Going into this period of financial constraint, it is vital that we continue to improve efficiency without diminishing the service we provide in any way," said Mr Devlin.

"It is our aim to make every patient's experience special. I believe we can meet these challenges and I'm optimistic for the future of the trust."

Having taken up his position just five months ago, Mr Devlin has already seen some positive changes at the trust and believes that the service will continue to improve under his leadership.

He went on to say: "I would like to see improvements to some parts of the buildings at the hospital. It is essential that we update them so all our services are offered in a 21st-century environment."

"There is also a need to develop and increase maternity services across Medway, particularly for those seeking a more natural birth."

"I also believe it is vital that we work closely with GPs to ensure that patients and visitors understand what options are available to them."

"Although I have been at the trust

HEALTH BOSS: Chief executive Mark Devlin

for just a short time, I'm delighted to say that I've been impressed with much of what I have seen so far.

"Staff, volunteers, governors and members have worked extremely hard this year to achieve many successes. We met record levels of patient demand and achieved all major national targets, as well as eliminating problems from the previous year. This included meeting the four-hour Accident and Emergency (A&E) access standard and greatly improving same-sex accommodation."

With these new changes already implemented and a new vision for the future, Mr Devlin believes that the people of Medway will have a service they can rely on and where they can receive the treatment they deserve.

He said: "My vision is that Medway NHS Foundation Trust will be a centre of effective, modern healthcare delivery for the growing communities we serve."

Climbers will give £5K to good causes

A DOZEN determined explorers will hand nearly £5,000 to charity tomorrow after successfully completing the gruelling Three Peaks challenge.

The Medway Council group climbed to the summit of Ben Nevis, Scafell Pike and Mount Snowdon, the highest points in Scotland, England and Wales, respectively, in July.

They have so far raised more than £4,800 for their two chosen charities – Demelza House Children's Hospice and Shelterbox – and donations continue to come in.

The council climbers will present the charities with the money at Gun Wharf tomorrow.

Youth service manager Geoff Waters, who was among those to beat the Three Peaks fundraiser, said: "This was a huge mental and physical challenge for everyone involved and an achievement we're proud of."

"We're also astounded by the amount of support and generosity that has been shown by everyone who has sponsored us and it's with great pleasure that we will be able to hand over the cheques to two fantastic and very worthwhile charities."

Charity launches new single parent website

NEARLY 12,000 single parent families live in Medway, a new survey has revealed.

The figure was publicised by Gingerbread as part of the charity's You're Brilliant campaign, which offers practical advice and support to adults.

Charity bosses said their organisation was ready to help single parents face the tough economic times ahead.

Gingerbread's chief executive Fiona Weir said: "Single parents are raising happy, healthy children and most are holding down a job too. They deserve praise, not criticism, for the brilliant achievements they make."

As part of the campaign, the charity is launching a new website providing expert help and information, including vital money-saving tips, job-search advice and support with sorting out issues around separation.

Fiona added: "Single parents are facing a really difficult time because of the economic downturn. This is why it's the right time to launch the new website and offer single parents the helping hand they may need."

Gingerbread's website can be visited at www.gingerbread.org.uk.

Shoppers pan pay-per-go loos

DISGRUNTLED shoppers continue to kick up a stink over the now-paid-for Pentagon public toilets.

Yourmedway has been flooded with letters and emails from readers who have been left outraged by the 20p-a-time facilities.

Medway Pensioners Forum chairman Peter Nassan said: "It's a disgrace."

"It's bad enough having to pay parking charges to go to the town, but now we have to pay toilet charges too."

"What is this council trying to do, kill the town off altogether?"

Medway Council passed ownership of the Chatham town-centre toilets to Pentagon Co-ownership SARL earlier this year, despite recently pumping £210,000 into refurbishing the loos.

Council bosses are due to discuss the toilet situation this evening after Labour's Paul Godwin listed the issue as a member's item.

He said: "I would like to know about the refurbishment of and charging for the Pentagon toilets."

"In particular, I would like to raise the whole issue of the value for money for the council in terms of their £200,000 investment and the failures to get guarantees about the toilets remaining free of charge."

In a report due to be read this evening, Medway Council's regeneration boss Robin Cooper said the lease with Pentagon Co-ownership SARL was "good value" for the authority as they were spending £100,000 a year maintaining and staffing the facilities.

He added: "The lease with the Pentagon represents good value for the council, meaning that clean, modern toilets are available for shoppers and no longer maintained by the council."

"This will save the council around £61,298 per annum or £5.5 million at today's costs over the duration of the 90-year lease."

Free toilets will be available at the new Globe Lane bus terminal from summer next year.

Police take action in bid to deal with dangerous dogs

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

MORE than 40 snarling dogs were seized by Kent police in the first six months of this year, it has been revealed.

The animals were taken from their owners under section one of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991, which focuses on banned breeds such as the Pit Bull Terrier and the Japanese tosa and other dogs bred for fighting.

A Freedom of Information request submitted to Kent Police shows officers seized 41 dogs between January 1 and June 1 this year.

A further 17 dogs were suspected of being dangerous but were not seized as they were too young to be legally assessed under section one of the Act.

Destroyed

The seized dogs were taken to a Force-approved kennel where they were kept until either their owner arranged for their care of the courts decided on their fate.

Five dogs were subsequently destroyed during the same six-month period.

During this time, Kent Police spent £21,941 on the cost of kenneling, vet treatment, legal bills and other associated costs involved with the welfare of the dogs.

Sgt Tony Dyer of the Kent Police Dog Section said: "While there are thousands of dogs across the county that are loyal and loving family pets, there are a very small minority of dogs that potentially pose a risk and are seized by Kent Police under the Dangerous Dogs Act.

"Early this year, Kent Police introduced two

DANGEROUS BREEDS: Dog Legislation Officers qualified to deal with dangerous dogs have been patrolling the area

Dog Legislation Officers who are specially qualified to identify dangerous dogs and give expert evidence in court.

"When seized, the dogs are taken to kennels, approved by Kent Police, where they are kept until the court decides the appropriate course of action.

"Where costs arise, such as vets bills, these are covered by Kent Police, although this can be claimed back from the defendant in court if found guilty.

"Although Kent Police pays costs such as these, it is far better for us to deal with the financial implications than the potential implications of not seizing a dangerous dog.

"When Kent Police receives calls from dog owners who are concerned that their dog might be a dangerous breed our dog section is able to offer expert advice to either allay those fears or confirm that the dog would indeed be classed as a dangerous dog."

Clarissa Baldwin, chief executive of the Dogs Trust charity, said a complete revision of the existing Dangerous Dogs Act was needed.

"Dogs Trust, which has a Rehoming Centre in Canterbury, has long been calling for an amendment to the Act to reflect the 'deed not breed' of a dog," she said.

"It has been apparent for many years that existing legislation has failed to prevent dog attacks and that it urgently needs revising to help protect the general public and dog welfare."

Co-op grant will help football club stay on the ball

THE future looks bright for Walderslade Football Club after they received a £2,000 grant from The Co-operative's Community Fund.

The Medway-based club have now kitted themselves out with practice equipment and and moveable goal posts, allowing them to put the possible stars of the future through their paces.

The money has also allowed them to provide a new kit for the players.

Club spokesperson Allison Murkin said: "Over the years, the club has gained a reputation for producing great players and giving young people, both boys and girls, the opportunity to participate in this fantastic sport, regardless of their ability.

"This grant from The Co-operative has allowed us to buy vital equipment that will help our team of volunteers train junior footballers well into the future

Grants

The Co-operative Community Fund offers grants from £100 to £2000 to community projects across the country. The grants are offered based on principles such as social responsibility and caring for others.

Jim Grogan from The Co-operative Group's Kent Area Membership Committee said: "The Community Fund can make a real and lasting contribution to local communities and Walderslade Football Club is certainly a worthy cause.

"Many community groups share the same values as The Co-operative and could benefit from an award and we would certainly welcome their applications."

More than £200,000 is available annually to support charities and community groups and application forms are available online at www.co-operative.coop/communityfund or by phoning 0161 827 5879.

Driver jailed over string of offences

A MOTORIST has been jailed for 180 days and banned from driving for five years after pleading guilty to a number of offences.

Mareks Ivanovs, of Stour Close, Rochester, was arrested on Saturday, September 18, after being caught behind the wheel of a blue Jaguar in Dock Road, Chatham, while disqualified from driving.

The 37-year-old, who was found to be driving without third party insurance, then failed to provide a specimen of breath for analysis.

He was sentenced at Medway Magistrates Court on Monday, September 20.

Man guilty of crack cocaine possession

A MAN was handed a 12-month conditional discharge after being caught in possession with a class-A drug.

Anthony Short, of Sharfleet Drive, Rochester, was stopped by patrols in Sidney Road, Borstal, on Saturday, August 21, while in possession of one gram of crack cocaine.

The 27-year-old appeared before Medway magistrates on Monday, September 20, where he pleaded guilty to drug offences.

He was ordered to pay £85 costs.

Women's Institute in perfect harmony

SINGING secretary Jan Mason plans to swap paperclips for platinum discs as a member of the Women's Institute's first-ever pop group.

The 54-year-old Rainham resident outlasted hundreds of other entrants in a nationwide search to find the five best voices to represent The Harmonies, whose debut album is released on October 25.

Mrs Mason, who works for Medway Community Healthcare, hopes the group's quest for chart success will prove to would-be members that the WI is keeping up with the times.

"We're probably not what people would envisage as being typical WI members," she said. "Most have the 'jam and Jerusalem' image of old women with grey hair in mind, but none of us are like that.

"Admittedly a lot of our members are older and have been there for years, so that's why we need younger people to join up too.

"The WI is just good fun and there's always a lot going on. You get to learn a lot of new and traditional skills, and it's great socially."

The youngest member of the Harmonies is Gemma Woznicki, 26, from Bow, east London.

Doreen Connor, 41, from Gloucestershire; Jennie Mantell, 35,

WI WOMEN AND SONG: Jan Mason (far left) and The Harmonies' debut album is out soon from Staffordshire; and Naomi Willmott, 37, from Bristol, complete the quintet.

Mrs Mason – a member of Wigmore WI – reached the final stages of the competition after impressing judges with her rendition of the 1971 James Taylor hit You've Got a Friend.

More than 600 other entrants submitted tapes of themselves singing the WI's unofficial anthem Jerusalem, a modern version of which is included on the Harmonies' album.

"I thought I stood a good chance of getting into the final auditions because I knew I had quite a good voice," said Mrs Mason. "I sang for a semi-professional group called Spiral, so I just thought this would be a fantastic opportunity for me."

Asylum-seeker's last-minute reprieve before Ugandan flight

A UGANDAN asylum-seeker who was just hours away from being deported was saved after a last-minute injunction was obtained by the Kent Law Clinic in Medway.

The reprieve came on the day she was due to be flown back to Entebbe, Uganda, on Tuesday September 21.

She was being flown to her home country after the UK Border Agency (UKBA) rejected claims that she had been tortured there.

Following this decision, which was upheld back in August, she had an appeal rejected but was able to access a new medical report from the national charity Medical Justice on September 20.

This stated that scars on her body were synonymous with "violent abuse or torture by whipping."

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

Upon receipt of this new evidence, the Medway Kent Law Clinic, part of the University of Kent, agreed to help the woman after receiving a desperate plea from Medical Justice.

The plea was taken up by solicitor Catherine Carpenter, who said: "In incidents such as this, there is a very real possibility that if the person is removed they may come to some harm."

She was aided in the task by barrister Rachel Marcus and a former student from the University of Kent, also now practising as a barrister.

The three legal professionals worked tirelessly and free of charge speaking to immigration centres, the UKBA and previous representatives of the asylum-seeking woman.

At first it appeared their hard work had been in vain when they received a fax from the border agency at 3.50pm stating that the removal would go ahead despite the new evidence.

With just five hours remaining until the woman was due to fly to Uganda, the team were forced to make an emergency call to a high court judge in a last-gasp attempt to save her from her fate.

After four hours, they finally received confirmation that the Honourable Mr Justice Edwards-Stuart had placed an injunction on the Secretary of State for the Home Department preventing the removal of the woman.

This was confirmed to the delighted team at 7.45pm when, in a conversation with the duty inspector at the UKBA, it was confirmed that the lady would not be boarding the flight which was due to leave at 9.15pm.

The woman has now been taken to Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre where she awaits news on who will handle her new case.

Youngster aces MENSA exams

BRAINIAC Joseph Warrilow has been invited to join the prestigious Mensa organisation after aching the entrance exams.

The 13-year-old from Rochester received the offer after posting near perfect scores in both tests.

The Gad's Hill pupil was one of hundreds of A* pupils from across the country who was asked to take the tests.

He stunned Mensa chiefs by finishing in the top one per cent in both exams.

Joseph said: "I was excited to go to London for the day but became a anxious once at the University of London."

"I found the multiple-choice paper relatively straightforward and so left the test feeling quite pleased with myself."

"I was proud to do such a hard test and then to get into Mensa."

The Year-9 pupil follows in his father's footsteps by joining the society.

The talented youngster wants to pursue a career in film and animation.

BAGGING KELLY'S HERO

Former KOSmedia photographer Jae Donnelly has been applauded for his "chivalry" - after helping glamour girl Kelly Brook with her luggage.

Jae, 30, who is now one of New York's top paparazzi, was one of a pack of snappers waiting for the actress to get off her flight at Newark Liberty Airport, New Jersey, from Los Angeles.

Kelly, who was bought up in Medway, was having trouble with her luggage, so Jae stepped in.

In the UK, the story and pictures made the Daily Mail which praised Jae, who used to live in Sandgate, for his actions and said he showed "chivalry was not dead".

"It just seemed the polite thing to do," he said.

Park gears up for Children in Need

MEDWAY Park will come alive with music, dance and drama as part of this year's Children in Need celebrations.

The Gillingham sports centre will be the focal point of the fundraising festivities across the area and will feature special guests as well as activities ranging from magic workshops to a cake-icing competition.

There will also be a number of sponsored sporting activities.

Councillor Les Wicks, Medway Council's Portfolio holder for Children's Services, said: "This looks set to be a fun and action-packed evening, for a very worthwhile cause.

"I would encourage everyone to get involved and have some fun, and hopefully together, Medway can raise plenty of money to help children and young people across the UK."

The event will be held between 6pm and 10.45pm on November 19th. A timetable of events is still to be announced.

To join the Medway BBC Children in Need event, contact Geoff Waters on 01634 332253 or email geoff.waters@medway.gov.uk. Alternatively, visit www.mixitonline.co.uk and register online.

Ban plan means pupils may have had their chips

FAST-food outlets could be forced to stop operating near schools in a bid to slash childhood obesity rates.

The plan by Medway Council, due to be discussed last night, forms part of a drastic new strategy encouraging children to follow a healthy diet after figures revealed one in five year six pupils, aged 10-11, are obese.

The rate of obesity for the age group was 19.4 per cent for 2008-09, where the national average was 18.3 per cent.

With reception pupils, aged four to five, the rate of obesity was 11.7 per cent – almost two per cent higher than the national average.

The figures have pushed the council and NHS Medway to devise a strategy aimed at tackling the problem, with the banning of fast-food outlets near schools, leisure centres and parks as one of the major steps.

Plans were due to be outlined in a report to cabinet members last night.

A council spokesman said: "Medway Council and NHS Medway are committed to ensuring all children have a healthy start in life.

"We are looking into the feasibility of producing a Supplementary Planning Document that would restrict the development of new fast food outlets near schools."

■ BY MARIJKE COX

In the cabinet report, Rose Collinson, director of children and adult services at Medway, said the council wants to encourage and give young people the chance to make healthier choices.

"Obesity levels in Medway are higher than the English average at year six and reception year," she said.

"Healthy eating and the links to deprivation are contributions to this and we recognise that there is further work to be done to improve health outcomes."

A research group behind the report looked at examples of healthy eating, including community allotment projects and the infant feeding programme seen at children's centres and through health visiting services.

It praised school meal provision and highlighted the need to promote free school meals through tasting sessions for eligible children.

Rehman Chishti, Gillingham and Rainham

CHIPS CHOPPED: Fast food outlets will be banned near schools, if the report is agreed by the council

MP, welcomed the report.

He said: "The health of young people in Medway is extremely important I believe that pro-health policies combined with the dedicated work of sports clubs and the impact of London 2012 will make a big difference."

The report by Medway Council follows Kent County Council's Healthy Weight Strategy, which was voted through by councillors after figures revealed 20-25 per cent of the county's population is obese.

Aspiring escorts left out of pocket

WOULD-BE male escorts have been targeted by cash-grabbing conmen, Trading Standards officials have revealed.

Potential recruits responding to a bogus agency were told they could earn £600 from a guaranteed six appointments per week.

All they needed to do to get on the firm's books was make a deposit of £249 by cheque or bank transfer to cover administration fees and background checks.

However, those who stumped up the cash were left out of pocket and heard nothing more from the agency.

Medway Council's Trading Standards said this scam was one of 15 reported to the team in the last week alone.

Community safety boss Cllr Mike O'Brien said: "The team are concerned and alarmed at the increasing number of scams being reported by members of the public.

"There is a noted increase in the number of enquiries related to scams, and it is not clear if this is because more people are being targeted or because of increased awareness of these scams.

"Trading Standards are warning that in times when unemployment is high, offers to get rich quick and earn easy cash fast are on the increase.

"The best advice is to be very wary of offers where a financial outlay is required in advance of a salary.

"As with all scams and mass-marketed fraud, if it seems too good to be true, than it usually is."

To report a scam or seek further advice please contact Trading Standards via Consumer Direct on 08454 040506.

QUESTION & ANSWER

ALAN JARRETT

Q How long have you been in your role at the council?

A Since 2000, when the Conservatives formed a minority administration and I have been deputy leader and finance portfolio holder ever since. We assumed the cabinet model of local government in 2001.

Q What is your background and how did you become involved?

A My background is in private sector manufacturing and I became involved in politics through the Conservative Party. I was elected in North Dane ward in 1997 and again in 2000. After reorganisation, I have been elected twice in Lordwood and Capstone.

Q What is the best aspect of your job?

A Being able to get things done. It's always a balancing act between competing demands on resources, but we have been responsible for delivering changes for the better in Medway. Keeping council tax low, transport initiatives and looking after the vulnerable are some of the achievements. Being a politician gives you some of the tools you need to affect change.

Q And the worst?

A Dealing with the inevitable frustrations of bureaucracy. Coming from a private sector background – where things get done quickly – it's a constant struggle to get speedy results in local government. The best way of dealing with that is through budget-setting – once it's in the budget, it's going to happen.

Q How has the change of Government affected your job?

A So far, it has made it more difficult, but only because we inherited such an unholy financial mess. Labour remains in denial, even after being shown the door by the electorate.

They still think you can spend money you haven't got and everything should be free.

There's no such thing as a free lunch – someone, somewhere has to pay. It's going to be a tough few years, but we'll get through it.

Q What advice would you give to someone considering a career in finance?

A I am a politician with financial responsibility. But whichever way round it is, it is through the effective use of finance that you can make things happen – money talks.

At Medway Council I work with gifted financial officers and together we have made a formidable team over the years.

Q What are your hobbies away from the council?

A Country sports – shooting and fishing, about which I write in the national shooting press and have penned nine books to date.

I work in the voluntary sector in the shooting and conservation world, both in Kent and nationally. We have protected the sport and in Kent we protect and manage more than 10,000 acres of priceless estuary land.

Q What has been the highlight of your career so far?

A Producing a succession of balanced budgets and helping the Conservatives in Medway win three successive local elections.

I work with some smashing politicians in Medway. In the cabinet everyone works really hard and we all care deeply about what we doing for the people of Medway.

Q Do you have any heroes?

A Margaret Thatcher. She knew you can't buck the market, as this country is finding out to its cost. A formidable lady who rose to the top in a male-dominated world – until the back-stabbers did for her.

Q Tell us a little-known fact about yourself.

A In manufacturing I was a shop steward for years. My colleagues didn't think much of having a Conservative in an essentially Labour-dominated world, but we still got things done. I've seen both sides – the workers' perspective and the managers'. Poacher turned gamekeeper, I suppose.

Homes halted by Tudor wall discovery are coming down

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

WRECKING crews are about to begin demolishing partially-built housing adjacent to the historic Restoration House gardens.

Workers are expected to begin tearing down the development this week.

The incomplete housing project was brought to an end two years ago when a Tudor wall was noticed on the Rochester town centre site by Restoration House co-owner Robert Tucker.

A section of the wall had been destroyed to make way for new homes. English Heritage officials were called in to inspect the wall and put a stop to any further work. The firm behind the project later went into liquidation.

Mr Tucker and his fellow Restoration House owner Jonathan Wilmot bought the site, together with the adjoining old brewery, which was also part of the scheme.

On his plans for the land, Mr Tucker said: "Ideally we would like to restore the Tudor wall and the ancient garden of which it was an important feature. But complications have arisen because of planning issues.

"For us to achieve our ambition, it would require Medway Council to modify existing planning consents and pay us compensation for mistakes they made in allowing the housing development to go ahead.

"They would then assist rather than hinder the creation of an historic attraction which would be a huge asset to Rochester and the Medway towns."

BROKEN HOMES: Site of the doomed and abandoned development in Rochester, with the Tudor wall circled

Mr Tucker and Mr Wilmot have criticised Medway Council for allowing permission for new homes which breached planning restrictions.

They also believe archaeological searches should have revealed the Tudor wall, which though covered in ivy, was above ground and highly visible.

Subsequent archaeological studies have revealed further walls, which have thrown fresh light on how Rochester would have appeared in Tudor times.

Chipping in with fire safety advice

FIRE chiefs are reminding residents not to leave cooking unattended after two chip pan fires in as many days.

Crews were called to Drakes Close, Upchurch, at 5.10pm on Tuesday, last week, when a blaze took hold in the kitchen.

The were also called to Lamberhurst Green, Twydall, at 12.35pm the following day. The second chip pan fire was out on arrival but a man was suffering from the effects of smoke inhalation.

Kent Fire and Rescue Service's Lawrence Pater said: "There are three important safety messages to come out of these incidents: fit smoke alarms – they really are invaluable; never leave cooking unattended; and if you are unlucky enough to have fire start in your home, never tackle it yourself – get out, stay out and call 999."

Missing scooter

A DELUXE mobility scooter worth more than £1,000 has been stolen from a Rochester garage.

The burgundy Shoprider Deluxe scooter, model TE-889N, was taken from Leybourne Road from 3-4pm on Monday, last week. Its owner, a 67-year-old woman, needs the scooter to get to the shops and church.

PC Debbie Trowell said: "This is a particularly callous theft which has caused great inconvenience. I urge anyone who has any information to contact police so we can return the scooter to its owner."

Flying visit adds to the fun at Gad's Hill

HIGH THERE: Air ambulance at Gad's Hill School

A CHARITY day at Gad's Hill School was interrupted by a visit from the Kent Air Ambulance – but for good reasons.

Captain Kevin Goddard and his crew flew over the school, near Rochester, before landing on the rugby field to meet pupils and parents as a reward for the school's contribution to the service.

Their visit was the highlight of a charity fund-raiser at the school, part of its on-going support for the air ambulance.

Capt Goddard said: "We wanted to say thank you for all their outstanding support over the last year."

On-board doctor Neil Durge said: "It's the best job in the world and really cool to fly. Every day we get to make a difference to people's lives. It's extremely rewarding."

Fun day visitors and pupils enjoyed activities including a space-hopper race, pony rides, karate displays and yoga classes.

There was also a barbecue, target shooting and a raffle that helped to raise a further £1,500 for the air ambulance.

Game on as rivals battle for sporting supremacy

THE first event of the Mini Youth Games gets under way in Rochester today with a tournament at Holcombe Hockey Club.

The hockey contest will be followed by seven more sporting competitions that make up this year's programme.

The games are open to every primary school pupil in Medway and the competition aims to provide equal opportunities for all participants – children can take part irrespective of gender, ability or disability.

Prizes are awarded for every event and the schools will battle it out to see which emerges victorious and walks away with the coveted title – currently held by Wainscott Primary.

The Mini Youth Games will be followed by Secondary Schools Games which will feature 12 competitions spread across the academic year, beginning with indoor rowing at Medway Park on October 7.

Schools from across the area will compete in a variety of sporting events and the winners will take their place at the Night of Champions competition, due to be held during the 2011 Medway Festival of Sport.

Last year's winners were Thomas Aveling School in the girls' competition and Chatham Grammar in the boys'.

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

A key emphasis of the Secondary School Games is to provide youngsters with a variety of outlets that will aid their development for later life, as well as encouraging healthy lifestyles, improving social and communication skills and working as a team.

Cllr Howard Doe, head of community services at Medway Council, said: "With the London 2012 Olympic Games less than two years away there is a major focus on encouraging competitive sport and sports participation. "The Medway Games provide young people with a fantastic opportunity to experience the thrill of friendly competition at first-class sporting facilities."

Both events are organised by the council as part of the Medway Games programme. Visit www.medway.gov.uk/sportsdevelopment for details.

EDUCATIONAL: National Schools Film Week allows teachers and pupils to see a wide range of films for free (Percy Jackson and the Lightning Thief, inset)

Free cinema to inspire pupils in the classroom

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

SQUARE-eyed schoolchildren are being allowed to swap their pencil cases for popcorn and be educated by films including Disney's Princess and the Frog.

Madagascar and Percy Jackson and the Lightning Thief are also being shown as part of National Schools Film Week, which is encouraging teachers to take their pupils on a free trip to the cinema.

The initiative set up by the Film Education charity has won the backing of Oscar-winning director Danny Boyle, as well as numerous academics from across the country.

Jon Kear – lecturer in the philosophy of art at the University of Kent – said the movies would help teach youngsters about film-making as well as act as a springboard for further discussion.

For example, children who watch Percy Jackson at the cinema might then be asked to complete a project on Greek mythology.

"The idea is to raise issues about the films themselves," said Dr Kear. "It's not simply to encourage students wanting to study film anyway, but to deepen the experience of others who may see going to the cinema as simply entertainment."

"I think it's safe to say film is the dominant art form of our time and is a vehicle through which we can understand our world and raise issues from it."

"Children from a very early age are very familiar with watching films, so cinema can reach them in ways other art forms or study areas may take more time to."

National Schools Film Week runs from October 14-22 and is being supported by cinemas in Canterbury, Ashford, Folkestone, Maidstone, Rochester, Chatham, Herne Bay and Tunbridge Wells.

In addition to the PG and U-certificate films being shown to younger pupils, there are also more grown-up movies for teenagers including Fish Tank – directed by another Oscar-winner, Dartford's Andrea Arnold – and Hidden.

Mr Kear will give a lecture before the October 20 Canterbury Odeon screening of the latter movie, a moody French-language hit released in 2005.

He said: "Hidden is a very challenging and thought-provoking film by a man who is celebrated for making movies about deep-seated failures in modern society."

"The pupils who watch it will be dealing with the kind of film that wants to address things in a different way and encourage dialogue rather than just providing the audience with simple answers."

This year marks the 15th anniversary of National Schools Film Week, which will be celebrated with 2,800 screenings at 570 cinemas across the UK.

In 2009 more than 400,000 students and their teachers took part.

Director Nick Walker said: "We hope teachers and students feel engaged and realise that attending a screening is far more than a nice trip to the cinema."

"We do this by giving schools added talks and online resources to contextualise the film, to empower teachers and to encourage students to explore new worlds by seeing films they wouldn't ordinarily choose."

Career guidance cuts to hit young job seekers hardest, says union chief

SLASHING £2 million from the budget of Kent's career guidance service will be like "asking soldiers to fight with rocks instead of guns", according to a union boss.

Kent County Council is planning to cut the £12.4 million Connexions grant by 16 per cent next year, but Unison regional organiser Simon Bolton says such a reduction will be devastating for less academic youngsters struggling to find work.

This year's funding is currently protected by the dedicated schools grant reserve, but the service will seek to tackle the cuts for 2011/12 through natural wastage, voluntary redundancies and flexible working hours.

Mr Bolton said: "At a time when young people in Kent need more support to find the few jobs that are out there, the support that already exists is being cut."

"We think Connexions is a reasonable service. There are always improvements that can be made, but the idea that you'll make anything better by chopping 16 per cent off is ludicrous."

"It's like telling soldiers they can't fire their weapons after 10pm because of budget cuts, and that they'll have to throw rocks at the enemy instead."

"We appear to have gone back to the 1980s when the Government chopped everything that moved, and look where that got us. Parts of Kent are still struggling to recover."

Last month KOS Media revealed how Connexions' independent Medway branch – Medway Youth Trust – had lost £100,000 from its £2.1m budget this year, resulting in recruitment and salary freezes as well as several other cutbacks.

The wider Kent branch has regional offices in 11 towns throughout the county, offering confidential advice on subjects including education, training, health and money.

Water firms told to tap into complaints

ONE of Kent's main water suppliers was flooded with complaints at a rate more than double the national average last year.

South East Water has come under fire after figures revealed the company handled the most grievances per 10,000 customers of all 13 UK providers not involved in the sewerage side of the business. And this came after a nine per cent reduction in complaints during 2008-09.

Industry watchdog the Consumer Council for Water (CCW) said it would be putting pressure on poor-performing firms to make improvements.

Chairwoman Dame Yve Buckland said: "Water customers are used to hearing about year-on-year rises in complaints but we are beginning to see progress from many of them."

"Unfortunately there are still a few companies who are letting their customers down when it comes to service."

"Despite a nine per cent drop in complaints, South East Water continues to be one of the worst performing companies in the industry."

"It is particularly poor for a smaller company that only provides water and is not involved in the sewerage side of the business.

"Many customers are satisfied with the service provided by their water company, but if something goes wrong we know customers want the problem to be sorted out quickly."

"The industry still has much more work to do and we will continue to call for improvements to ensure the year-on-year trend of rising complaints is well and truly behind us."

South East Water supplies drinking water to 2.1 million homes across Kent, Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire and Berkshire.

Most of the complaints were about billing and charging, there were also gripes about metering and water service.

The firm has seen a 20 per cent reduction in complaints over the past three years, from 11,440 in 2007-08 to 9,102 last year.

Customer services director Steve George said the company's merger with Mid Kent Water in December 2007 had contributed to the high number of complaints.

He said: "We had a massive challenge when two water companies merged to deliver a new in-house customer service centre, and have worked closely with the CCW to continually improve our service."

"We have invested in the training and development of our staff and are now seeing the benefits of their hard work and their dedication to improving service for our customers."

"Nevertheless, we recognise we still have a long way to go to bring down the number of complaints."

Craggs Row: Our report last week

Hard-working voters should not foot bill

So, after the debacle that was David Craggs' tenure as councillor for River Ward, the taxpayer is now going to have to foot the bill for yet another by-election.

This is ridiculous. How do we know the next councillor won't decide to walk out after five minutes? At £10,000, the cost of the non-election in August is just another example of hard-working people's money going to waste.

Surely someone in charge must have known about the potential problems surrounding Mr Craggs serving as a councillor and a Special Constable?

Either the police or the Conservative Party have a lot to answer for. I imagine, however, that the issue will be glossed over and more money used to fund this next election. I will find it very interesting to see who will replace Mr Craggs. Whether I shall vote or not remains to be seen.

TOO RIGHT: Ed's words of wisdom

Blogger Hill has hit the nail on the Ed

I totally agree with Yourblogger Ed Hill (last week). We are supposed to be living in sophisticated and enlightened times, yet two men can't innocently sleep in the same room together without it being treated as a major scandal.

Our society claims to be so avant-garde that we accept same-sex marriages and those other than heterosexuals are now protected by law from any form of discrimination and yet such a fuss is created over two men sharing a room. Utter madness. Has society progressed or gone backwards?

In this computer era, are we all to be judged by spiteful, malicious, axe to grind holier-than-thou bloggers who believe they can claim some sort of moral high ground?

I'm surprised William Hague went so far as to reveal his and Ffion's personal problems in having Group editor (and atheist) Gary Wright has a confession to make about the Pope's UK visit...

SO, POPE Benedict XVI has gone home to the Vatican and it's business as usual for the newspapers and TV channels.

But I must say as an atheist I was actually quite impressed with the effect of his four-day visit.

The cop-out position of much of the media coverage was to mention how the Pope was German and had been in the Hitler Youth; how he had helped manage his child-abusing priests; how his attitude to condoms had helped ensure the spread of HIV in the Third World and – it seemed to me – remind the viewer at every opportunity (yes, stand up, BBC) how religion is probably pretty much out of date.

And on the eve of his arrival amid forecasts that there would be more protestors than adoring crowds, the media was gifted the Britain is 'like the Third World' jibe, thanks to Cardinal Kasper, who decided not to come after his comments were made public. (Gout, apparently).

But in the event it all went pretty well. The excellent Popemobile – built on a German Mercedes 4x4, not so much a caravanette conversion as a conservatory – meant the crowds did get to see him. And sure enough there were big crowds – and it wasn't old folk either. There were lots of young, intelligent people who made, very often, long journeys to see Papa Ratz (genius headline – I also rather liked the question whether the Pope had ever thought of using the nickname 'Eggs').

By the time he'd sipped Fanta with the Queen and Region's visitors are aiding the recovery

The number of people visiting the South East is rising as more and more recognise its value as a tourist destination.

Tourism South East reports that average room occupancy, average daily rate and revenue per available room have all increased in recent months. At a time when unemployment is rising across the region, the boost in tourism is leading to new hotels being opened and jobs being created. More tourists are visiting because they're recognising the rich diversity of our region. They're coming for our beautiful countryside, historic towns and modern cities.

It's important for our economic recovery that people from abroad and elsewhere in the UK visit the South East.

They will shop in our shops, eat in our restaurants and visit our attractions – all the while creating new jobs in the region.

I am sure all our visitors will recommend the South East so we can expect to see their friends next year.

Join The Children's Trust pyjama week

I would like to make your readers aware of a special charity week taking place this October in aid of The Children's Trust.

Humphrey's Pyjama Week, now in its third year, is from October 11-15. Nurseries, pre-school groups and primary schools are being invited to take part in this increasingly popular, annual charity event.

Toddlers will be encouraged to put on their favourite sleepwear for just one day at nursery or school and make a £2 donation to the children's charity.

Money from the week will go to The Children's Trust, a national charity, which provides care, education and therapy for children with multiple disabilities and complex health needs, and rehabilitation services to children with an acquired brain injury.

Nurseries and schools that register will receive a free event pack with invitations, fun party ideas and an activity book.

All children who take part in a Humphrey's Pyjama Party will receive a story book specially written by Sally Hunter, creator and illustrator of Humphrey's Corner.

The booklet, with its delightful illustrations, tells the story of Humphrey visiting his special friend at The Children's Trust. In addition, youngsters will also receive a commemorative sticker and certificate. Register online at www.thechildrenstrust.org.uk/humphrey. For more details, email humphrey@thechildrenstrust.org.uk or ring 01737 364322. I do hope nurseries, pre-school groups and schools will help raise as much money as possible for some very special children.

Food security crisis will affect everyone

For too long we have been avoiding one of the biggest threats to this country, deluged by cheap food prices, importing more than 70 per cent of what is on our supermarket shelves and dismissing the calls from UK farmers and fishermen to focus more on food production.

Food insecurity is a crisis emerging slowly but one that will impact our shores and our citizens sooner rather than later.

The tension between population growth and climate change is placing this country on a trajectory towards food inflation and everyone is going to feel the pain.

We are seeing the start of serious problems that will only increase in years to come. Food is a globalised business and each and every one of us will feel the impact of Russia's decision to suspend wheat exports.

Tons of wheat has been wiped out in Pakistan. This will also affect world prices and add even greater unpredictability to securing food staples.

A new era of trade protectionism in foodstuffs could well be on the horizon, not for economic gain but to ensure domestic stability.

Could the Russian president be seen to be exporting wheat when his voting public see threefold price rises for bread in Moscow?

Food security has been for too long dismissed by policy-makers. In many ways we have devolved the responsibility to supermarkets, expecting the market to deliver plentiful and cheap food to our shops. But how vulnerable is this system? And are we considering the impact of rising prices and scarcity in foods we take for granted?

Sir John Beddington, the Government's chief scientific advisor, and his predecessor Sir David King, have been highlighting this vulnerability for years.

However, too little has been done and time might not be on the side of the consumers – particularly the poor.

Firstly, we must assess the risk, a risk that is growing and will only accelerate with global crises that will affect food production and lead to rising commodity prices.

Secondly, the Government should halt development on agricultural land. The means and resources for food production must be regarded as a national priority. And all this at a time when parts of the nation might lose productive land due to sea level rises.

The Council for the Protection of Rural England estimates that as much as ten per cent of productive land will be lost in Kent by 2030.

We must also rethink the way we use food. I was recently part of a TV show that highlighted that up to 30 per cent of food – good food – is thrown away every year.

Supermarkets reject fruit and vegetables that do not fit 'aesthetic standards'; sell-by dates encourage us to throw away food that is perfectly fresh; and meat cuts such as offal are discarded as we have forgotten how to eat or cook them.

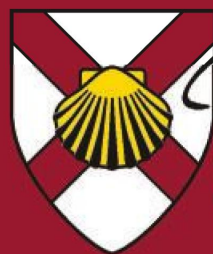

Regulations compel fishermen to discard fish based on an outmoded quota system and throw away sources of valuable protein.

A third step towards greater food security is the need to develop and invest in world-class food production technologies.

Food production will and must become one of Britain's industries of the future. Schools and universities must take steps to draw together the best brains and resources to address the challenge of dealing with food security. Until rationing was lifted after the war, food security was regarded as a strategic issue for government.

I urge the Government to look again at food production as part of our national security, establish a cross-departmental working team to ensure food inflation and scarcity is understood throughout Whitehall, and that we take the advice of our leading scientists, this is a time bomb whose fuse has just been lit.

Charlie's worth waiting for

CHARLIE LANDSBOROUGH

Wednesday, October 6
Central Theatre, Chatham

WHEN Charlie Landsborough was on the brink of giving up on his music career, all it took was one last leap of faith.

At the age of 53, the singer-songwriter from Birkenhead had been trying to get his career off the ground for four decades. When he received yet another knockback in January 1995, he was beginning to believe that he would never break into an industry dominated by youth and good looks.

But with a final flash of inspiration, he called the Irish television channel RTE, on which he had previously appeared, and asked if he could go on air to perform his song, What Colour Is the Wind? A week later, the song was topping the Irish charts and Landsborough's star was finally in the ascendancy.

Since that fateful day, the former teacher has attracted a huge following and is particularly popular with schoolchildren. Now a household name, the days of struggling to get a gig are long gone and fans flock to his shows to hear his blend of country, soul, blues and gospel. He has recently toured Australia and his 21st album is due to be released next year.

The youngest of 11 children, Landsborough grew up in a world that seemed magical at the time. One of his seafaring brothers once brought home a gift of a monkey and the family home was always full of music and laughter.

When Landsborough was just 12 years old, his mother died, and the tragedy would have a major effect on his early life. The changes in the household continued as his brothers grew up, married and moved out. Devastated by the loss, he became a petty thief and eventually ended up serving two months in prison.

Although he was ashamed of his behaviour, Landsborough took strength from his time behind bars and did not intend to return. He had started playing the guitar at the age of 14 and discovered a passion for music, losing interest in his education and doing a succession of varied jobs in order to focus on writing music. When he found himself working outdoors in freezing temperatures one day, he decided that he needed to think about a more secure future.

As he had a grammar school education, he applied to a teacher training college and was accepted. During his training, he studied alongside Jimmy McGovern, who would go on to become a BAFTA-winning screenwriter.

A committed Christian, he originally wanted to teach theology. But it became apparent that his real talent lay in music and he switched to teaching music instead.

For 14 years, Landsborough lived a double life of writing songs for school assemblies by day and performing at night. Sometimes he would have no sleep at all, heading home from a busy night on stage and going straight out again for a day of teaching.

Late break pays off for country star now spreading his music across the world

When his big break finally came along, Landsborough's patience certainly paid off. He began touring almost immediately and has appeared at such prestigious venues as the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

Fans can find out more about his remarkable story in his autobiography, Storyteller.

The concert starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £18/£17. To book call the box office on 01634 338338 or visit the website at www.thecentraltheatre.co.uk.

4SQUARE

Friday, October 1, Village Hall, Hunton

TEENAGE folk phenomenon 4Square visits Kent this week to reveal why they are among the most exciting young acts on the scene.

Four years ago, the talented musicians got together in a freezing cold farmhouse near Rochdale to try out their musical chemistry.

This chemistry soon proved to be explosive and the band now produces one of the funkier and most energetic fusion sounds on today's folk scene.

Based in Manchester, the young quartet plays everything from infectious reels to captivating Eastern melodies, as well as a number of their own catchy compositions.

Blessed with talent and musical maturity beyond their years, these bright young things bring plenty of energy to their performances and look set to enjoy an exciting career in the music business.

4Square visit Hunton, near Maidstone, as part of Applause Rural Touring's autumn season.

The concert starts at 8pm and tickets cost £8 or £5 for under-21s.

To book call the box office on 01622 820683/820127.

AUTUMN GLORY FLOWER FESTIVAL

Wednesday, October 6, to Sunday, October 10, Leeds Castle, near Maidstone

CELEBRATE the turn of the season at Leeds Castle with an array of beautiful floral displays.

Some of Kent's best floral designers will be creating decorations inspired by natural beauty for the castle's Autumn Glory Flower Festival.

As visitors wander around the rooms in the castle, they will come across magnificent seasonal arrangements and will have the chance to vote for their favourite display.

Choosing the rich colours and textures that we all associate with autumn, the participants sometimes plan their projects months in advance to get maximum impact. Florists, flower societies and clubs enter the festival in the hope of winning awards.

Enhancing the beauty of the castle's interior with flowers is a tradition that dates back to the last private owner, Lady Baillie, who created a cut flower garden in order to supply blooms throughout the year.

Admission costs £17.50/£15 for adults and £10 for children aged over four. Every ticket is valid for 12 months. To find out more call 01622 765400 or go online at www.leeds-castle.com.

CELTIC FEET

Thursday, September 30,
Orchard Theatre, Dartford

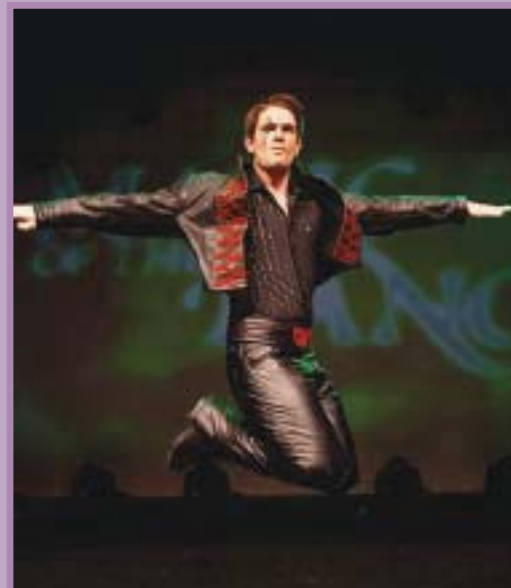

LOCAL dancer Dermot Cullen will be the lord of the dance when a Celtic extravaganza visits Dartford.

The Gillingham-based star appears in a leading role in Celtic Feet, a celebration of the Emerald Isle's dance traditions. He will be starring alongside other talented dancers such as Lord of the Dance female lead Ciara Sexton, Irish Dance World Champion Emma King and Riverdance star Mick Donegan.

Cullen began dancing at the age of six and won his first major Irish dance championship just a year later. His many achievements since include winning the All Ireland Championships three times and the Great Britain Championships a staggering eight times. When he retired from dancing after winning his second World Championship title in 2007, Cullen began starring in stage shows and he also teaches Irish dance in Kent.

With a live band to support the dancers, Celtic Feet is giving Riverdance a run for its money as the most spectacular Irish dance show on tour.

The show starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £21.50/£20.50. Call the box office on 01322 220000 or go online at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk.

COMEDY CLUB WITH MIKE GUNN

Friday, October 1, Bridgewood Manor Hotel, Chatham

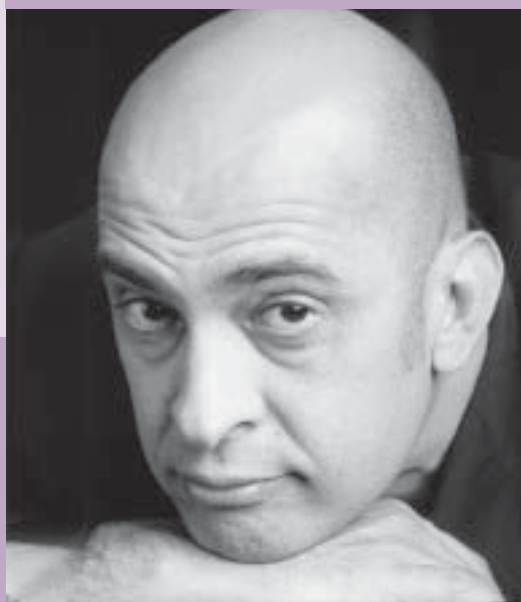

START the weekend with an evening of laughter when the Comedy Club returns to Chatham.

Three more top comedians will be aiming for the funny bone, including the show's MC Martin Beaumont. A master of the one-liner, Beaumont is adept at handling any kind of audience and is sure to get the fun started with his broad subject matter.

The opening act is Gerry K, whose honest observational humour has been delighting audiences since he made his debut in 2003. With a number of newcomer awards under his belt, he has also ventured into television and co-hosted Zoo magazine's football forum.

Headline act Mike Gunn (pictured) has cultivated his deadpan delivery and dry humour after a misspent youth and a series of grim day jobs, including a stint as an undertaker. He has appeared on Harry Hill's TV Burp and written for programmes like The 11 O'Clock Show and Match of the Day.

The over-18 show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £22.95 including a two-course meal and disco. To book call 01634 201333 or visit www.hahaheehee.com for more details.

Problem Solved

Holland Damp Proofing dries out your home and is guaranteed to work

DAMP is a creeping menace that affects thousands of homes across Kent.

During the summer months these problems may have been less obvious, but the damp is still there. Treating your property for damp now is the best way to make sure that your home is prepared and protected in time for the fast approaching winter.

It is important to tackle the problem at this time, because ignoring damp can store up serious problems and also pose potential health risks – especially if you have a medical condition such as asthma or rheumatism.

For years, people have tried to solve damp problems, applying waterproof coatings or injecting walls with chemical solutions.

This can involve contractors coming into your home and drilling into brickwork to pump chemicals into the walls – hacking off and replacing plaster inside.

By KATIE HOLDEN

The work can be messy, intrusive and your home will need redecorating once it's been done.

And, despite all this upheaval, there's no guarantee that it will work in the long term. Chemical barriers tend to break down over time, and once this happens – that damp will be back.

Holland Damp Proofing is a breath of fresh air that can permanently rid your home of the scourge of damp.

The idea is simple: draw out the moisture and the damp will disappear! The Holland Damp Proof System® involves a series of small damp-regulating bricks which neatly fit into specially prepared niches in the external walls of your home, close to the ground.

EXPERT OPINION: Evert de Graaf with one of the damp-regulating bricks that have already been installed in thousands of UK homes.

These cleverly allow air to flow into the brick chambers and out again – circulating airflow through the inside of the wall which evaporates the moisture, drying out the wall and allowing it to breathe. No chemicals, no mess and no replastering – your property dries out... and stays dry for good.

Holland's no-chemicals system is mess-free and as the work is completed from the outside there is no need to replaster.

It can be used on most types of wall (including stone) and combines perfectly with cavity wall insulation.

It takes just one to two days to install and all the work is carried out by our own professionally trained team of installers.

And we are so confident that it works – we'll give you a 20 year guarantee, so you can have total peace of mind.

'Holland ended our nightmare'

THUMBS UP: Mr Forino

MAUREEN Forino and her husband Charlie lived with a damp home for six years, spending a fortune on solutions they believed would work. Needless to say, nothing did.

"It was a nightmare. We had six years of misery," said Mrs Forino.

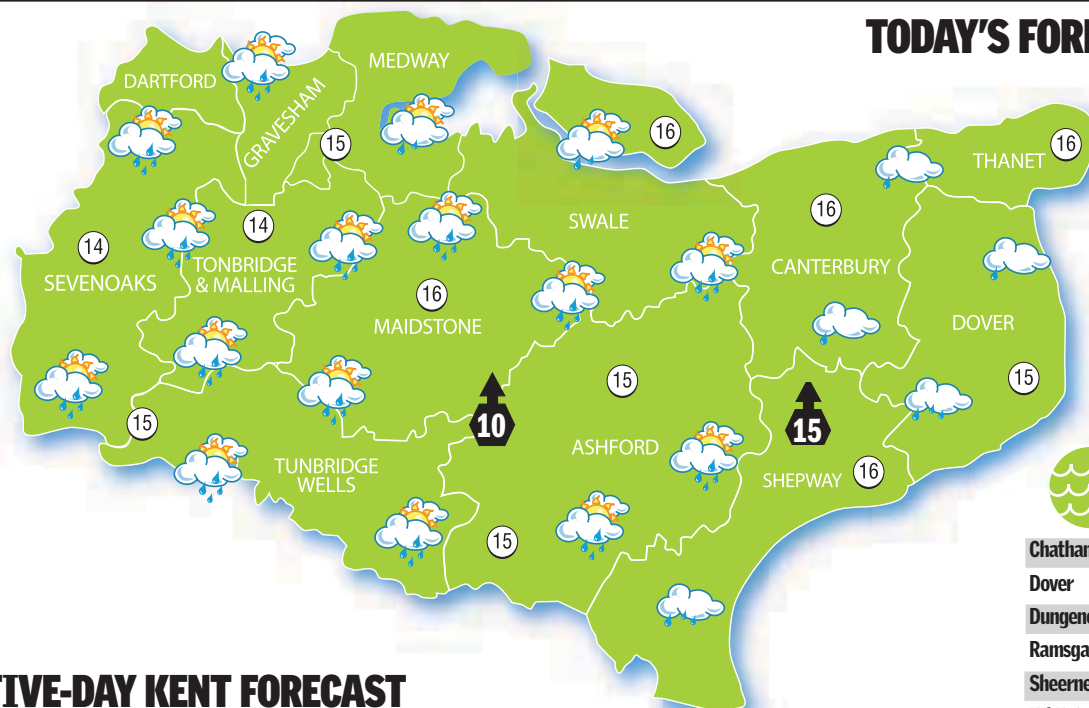

The Holland Damp Proof System® was installed in their 1930's bungalow in just one day – with no mess or disruption. After 12 months, the damp has stayed away – for good.

Director Affleck masterminds the heist but doesn't steal the screen

■ BY DAMON SMITH

BEN Affleck may be best known as an actor but the chisel-jawed leading man is steadily delivering his best work behind the camera.

He already has an Oscar on the mantelpiece as co-writer of Good Will Hunting and his directorial debut Gone Baby Gone was a gritty adaptation of Dennis Lehane's novel that garnered numerous critical plaudits.

For his second feature in the director's chair, Affleck remains on the streets of Boston for a taut heist thriller based on the novel Prince Of Thieves by Chuck Hogan.

The Town is a well-crafted and vivid portrait of a close-knit community of men with a strict code of silence that condemns those who speak out of turn to an early grave.

What the film may lack in originality it makes up for in exhilarating action sequences and strong performances, with Affleck noticeably giving himself the least showy role and allowing his co-stars to chew the scenery.

The film is set in Charlestown, Massachusetts, the one-square-mile neighbourhood that apparently produces more armoured car and bank robberies than anywhere else in America.

With that in mind, it beggars belief that the cops aren't better prepared to neutralise the threat of the gun-toting thieves, but Affleck's film wouldn't run much past 30 minutes without myriad suspensions of disbelief.

Doug MacRay (Ben Affleck) is doomed to repeat the mistakes of his father Stephen (Chris Cooper), who is serving time in a maximum security prison, as mastermind of a four-strong team of bank robbers comprising trigger-happy best friend Jem (Jeremy Renner), Gloansy (Slaine) and Desmond (Owen Burke).

On their final job, Jem takes bank manager

THE BOSS: Ben Affleck as underworld gang leader Doug MacRay in The Town and with Claire Keesey (left)

Claire Keesey (Rebecca Hall) hostage, releasing her once they are safely away from pursuing cops.

Fearing that the terrified woman may identify them, Doug engineers a meeting in a laundrette and slowly develops an attraction to Claire, who has no idea that she is falling in love with the man who pointed a gun at her head hours earlier.

Meanwhile, FBI Special Agent Frawley (Jon

Hamm) treads on the toes of Boston Police Detective Dino Ciampa (Titus Welliver) to apprehend the thieves and bring down money man Fergie Colm (Pete Postlethwaite).

The Town cranks up the tension as Doug struggles to keep his affair with Claire secret from Jem and the posse.

Once the apparent betrayal comes to light, it ignites a powder keg of emotions that rocks the neighbourhood to its foundations.

Affleck's (anti) hero is bland next to scenestealers Renner and Postlethwaite, but in his capacity as director, he makes light work of the two-hour running time and energises the set pieces, including a protracted car chase through labyrinthine alleys.

The only surprise is how long it takes Affleck to reach the resolution we can see coming a mile off.

TEENAGE DREAMS: High jinks lead to high embarrassment in The Inbetweeners

YOUR TV REVIEW

THE INBETWEENERS: Channel 4, 10.50pm, Friday
MERLIN: BBC1, 7pm, Saturday

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

NEVER in the history of teenagedom has anything been as hotly anticipated as The Inbetweeners.

That is an exaggeration, but nobody I know under the age of 30 wasn't incredibly excited to see the awkward, geeky sixth-form misfits hit our screens again.

The Inbetweeners is an irreverent portrayal of four teenage boys in the way that Peep Show described the lives of dull thirtysomethings. It is not for the faint-hearted, nor the young, nor the impressionable.

In this third season the gawky boys live up to expectations. They're profane and disgusting, but also unwittingly charming, with the childlike naivety of not-yet-fully-formed adults.

The second episode, in which the students tried drugs in order to look cool in front of a girl and each other, was endearingly embarrassing.

Not only were they accused of being racist by a drug dealer, but they were so completely inept at the illegal activity it seems a miracle they manage to accomplish the deed.

The great thing is the show can never be accused of glamorising drugs. Its portrayal of growing up is far more realistic, and far less exciting. A tribute to this programme is that it recently won the best sitcom award at the Rose D'Or film festival in Lucerne, Switzerland.

MERLIN, the medieval drama telling the story of King Arthur and his wizard before they were famous, began its third series with a bang.

A magnificent two-part, high-budget episode kicked off the new season in spectacular fashion exactly where the last series left off. This will certainly be appreciated by fans, although it may confuse the uninitiated.

Unlike most US dramas, which tend to lose ratings and budget and trail off into insignificance as they string along a weak concept until it is well and truly dead, Merlin seems to be growing as it ages.

The initially dodgy computer graphics are improving, the acting is getting much more convincing, albeit with one or two notable exceptions, the plot lines are getting more intricate and there are even more characters to enjoy.

Although family-friendly Merlin is still lovingly amateurish in places, it is becoming a programme of which the BBC can be very proud.

Loose woman Jane cruises in

BIG MAC: Songstress Jane McDonald kicks off the season with her unforgettable show

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

FORMER cruise singer Jane McDonald will sail into Dartford next month – kicking off the Orchard Theatre's star-studded October line-up.

The Yorkshire singer will take to the stage on Monday 4, performing hits from her top-selling five-album back catalogue.

An Orchard theatre spokesman said fans of the Loose Women presenter were in for a treat.

They said: "The show is a magical evening of music and laughter starring Britain's best-loved diva. "It's a warm and compelling evening's entertainment, which is proving a smash-hit throughout the UK."

The TV diva will be followed by the Maximum Rhythm and Blues night, featuring The Manfreds, born out of the ashes of the 1960s chart-toppers Manfred Mann.

Although touring without their former frontman, Manfred Mann, the band continues to wow crowds with all their old hits, including Do Wah Diddy Diddy, 5-4-3-2-1 and Mighty Quinn.

Support on the night comes from ex-Animals keyboardist Alan Price and Cliff Bennett, who secured a hit in the mid-60s with his cover of The Beatles' Got to Get You Into My Life.

The nostalgia vibe continues the following night when Marty Wilde, Eden Kane and Jet Harris perform alongside Roxanne Wilde and the Wildcats.

The Drifters will add a touch of soul to the Orchard theatre's October line-up when they strut into Dartford on Saturday 9.

Fans can expect to hear such hits as Saturday Night At The Movies, Little Red Book and Under The Boardwalk.

Big Band lovers are in for a treat on Saturday, October 16, when The Glenn Miller Orchestra perform.

Led by music director Ray McVay, the band will play war-time chart-toppers such as In the WATER WORKS: Sail past historic splendour such as the Valentre Bridge in Cahors, or traverse the locks of France's rivers (below)

Let the hidden waterways of France float your bateau

■ BY TIM WARE

IN FRANCE, a boating holiday is much more than simply a holiday on a boat. It's a chance not only to cruise past splendid scenery, wonder at historic towns and enjoy decent food and wine, but explore rarely frequented French nooks.

Joining my group in Douelle, a typical Lot village nestling beneath limestone cliffs just beyond the Dordogne, we're set for seven nights in the Nautila and have 76km of river stretching before us.

Settling into our four-cabined houseboat, we're quickly introduced to the warmer, less well-known countryside of the River Lot.

Perhaps a little like the Dordogne of three decades ago, it remains a part of France where time seems to have stood still, with picturesque villages and air as pure as the intoxicating red wine produced locally.

The Lot is France's seventh longest river and chugging through the water at a stately pace we form an intimate relationship with her virtues and foibles.

River cruising has come a long way since the days of damp post-war family boating holidays on the Broads. Modern boats are comfortable, well furnished and equipped (the most important item is probably a decent corkscrew).

At Parnac we stopped off for a wine tasting at Chateau Armandiere where Bernard Bouyssou showcases a range of rich red and rosé wines.

Soon we're on our way again, meandering lazily upstream. In the riverside village of Vers, we met Tim Ware travelled along the Lot with Hoseasons Holidays, which offers seven nights' self-catering on a boat sleeping eight from £1,355, excluding travel costs. The operator also fixes flights into Toulouse/Bordeaux, or Eurotunnel crossings for 500-mile drive to the Lot. Hoseasons reservations: 0844 847 1170 and www.hoseasons.co.uk. English couple Sally and Jeffery Stride, who arrived here in the 1970s as penniless artists when their van broke down.

The local mayor took pity and offered them a rent-free flat. The Strides stayed and prospered to the extent that their work adorns the walls of Number 10 Downing Street.

Another place with instant appeal is Cahors, where the river seems to go back on itself, as if it's forgotten something, leaving the town imprisoned in a tight bend.

Cahors is a Roman town which prospered in the Middle Ages. It's an easy place to get to know, small and homely, full of cheerfully busy bars and restaurants, a covered market, and impressive buildings like the 12th-century cathedral and the Renaissance Archdeacon's House.

Something unique to Cahors is Les Jardins Secret (the town's secret gardens). There are more than 20 of these oases of green, created by one Patrick Charoy, the city's enterprising director of open spaces, to use unwanted scraps of land.

The gardens all have different themes. I particularly liked the Jardin Mauresque; Arabesque to a tee with its tinkling fountains and exotic scent of patchouli.

There's also a Jardin d'Ivresse; Garden of Inebriation – appropriately a vineyard – and a Jardin du Savoir; in the grounds of Cahors' Blood Transfusion Service where, it will come as no surprise, all the flowers are red.

But, after a week on the water, what becomes etched in the memory is not the stunning scenery and towns like Cahors with its secret gardens, memorable though they are. It's the sheer joy of discovering a part of France that is still, surprisingly, something of a closed book to many Francophiles.

MOTORS NEWS

Paris shows suggestive new Astra sports star

VAUXHALL'S previous Astra was a standard bearer for an industry revolution creating clear styling differences between three and five-door versions of hatchback car models.

Under British design guru Mark Adams it now aims to go even further with the three-door version of the latest Astra, if this stunning GTC concept for the Paris Motor Show is anything to go by.

What may be the next Sport Hatch should also have a premium interior, though still able to carry five plus luggage.

A cheaper C-Max pitch

FORD claims significantly lower ownership costs for its new five and seven-seat C-Max MPVs, launched in October and priced from £16,745.

The savings could be worth as much as £800 against the outgoing C-Max, thanks to better forecasts on resale values, lower insurance and CO2 ratings and enhanced fuel economy.

Customers can choose from three petrol engines including the new high-efficiency/low emission 1.6-litre Ford Ecoboost direct-injection petrol unit and updated 1.6-litre and 2.0-litre Duratorq diesels – the former capable of an official combined fuel economy of 57.7mpg.

New buyers' interests 'Evoqued' by stunner

LAND ROVER has unveiled a new Range Rover for a more environmentally-friendly future. The Evoque is a real eye-catcher and has the all-terrain capability on offer that you would expect from LR. Versions can deliver emissions of just 130g/km CO2 and average around 60mpg.

LR has used lightweight construction and – a break from tradition – a front-wheel drive only option to achieve this greening of the new model and will almost certainly recruit new buyers, when it goes on sale next year priced from £30,000.

a loss of grip. It won't do serious off-road yomping, but the Lexus is a green and pleasant rural motor with some ability to cope with muck.

It is weird at first to feel this relatively large car ease away on electric power without a whisper. Even when woken up, power and speed escalates without fuss and bother thanks to a seamless automatic transmission.

Though it runs contrary to the hybrid ethos, the big Lexus can also be flung about far more than the previous RX series.

Body roll on the £52,435 SE-L model tested here – runner-up in a four-model line-up starting at £43,175 – is neatly damped by air suspension that also smoothes the ride.

There is a mixture of the clever and tacky inside the dark cabin; the head-up display underlines the shape of things to come for the display of essential clocks and gauges while an excellent Mark Levinson sound system is reason enough for many people to buy.

On the other hand, cheesy wood finishing on the armrests, centre console, wheel and gearshift underlines my view that it is time carmakers stopped bothering with such an anachronism, though the car's trimming is of excellent quality.

Government 'missed chance to create jobs and homes'

THE British Property Federation has attacked the Treasury's decision not to give financial support for new homes to rent.

It said the Government has missed a "real opportunity" to support the private rented sector, help ease the housing crisis, create new jobs and reduce the budget deficit.

HM Treasury ruled out funding to increase the delivery of homes to rent in response to a consultation launched by the previous Labour government, entitled Investment in the Private Rented Sector.

Opportunity

The BPF pointed out that nearly five million people are on council waiting lists for a home and could benefit if more private rentals were available.

"This is a real missed opportunity, but the real losers from today's announcement are not the property industry but the millions of people in the UK who just want somewhere to live," said Ian Fletcher, director of policy at the BPF.

"With a little bit of public spending, Government could have leveraged in significant funding for housing from institutions."

Price cuts blamed on spending review

PROPERTY asking prices in England and Wales fell for a third consecutive month in September, and have lost half the gains they made in the first six months of the year, a survey has revealed.

Property website Rightmove said asking prices fell 1.1 per cent this month, following drops of 1.7 per cent in August and 0.6 per cent in July.

The annual rate of growth slipped to 2.6 per cent from 4.3 per cent.

Rightmove's findings chime with other surveys showing house prices have stumbled in recent months – something commentators have blamed on increasing supply and nervousness ahead of large Government spending cuts.

However, supply pressures eased in September, according to the Rightmove survey, with the number of properties coming on the market falling to its lowest since April.

Sales look brighter, but lenders still cautious

■ BY NICK AMES

SALES prospects for houses in the UK are expected to improve in the next few months, despite the current uncertainty in the market.

The Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors (RICS) said that its members felt more confident about sales of UK property over the next three months than they did in July.

This is despite 32 per cent more chartered surveyors reporting prices falling, rather than rising, throughout August.

A fifth of those surveyed indicated that they expected sales to improve over the three months to December 31.

Commenting on the findings, RICS spokesperson Jeremy Leaf said: "There can be little doubt that the restrictive attitude to the provision of mortgage finance will continue to limit transaction activity in the market."

"Looking forward, our price indicators are telling a mixed story, which is consistent with the uncertainty hanging over the economy, the low level of interest rates and the lack of new house building."

Hefty deposit

Recent research by the Building Societies Association indicated that mortgage availability was less of a concern for prospective homebuyers in the current economic climate than it was earlier in the year.

Currently, the market is quite static, say analysts. Paul Holmes, chief executive officer of Firstprung, a company which specialises in getting people on to the housing ladder, said "You still need a fairly hefty deposit as a first-time buyer."

He pointed out that the lack of job security is stifling the market and lenders remain cautious about giving mortgages.

Mr Holmes said property is still too expensive, and activity will only return to the market if people have a more realistic view of what their home is worth.

According to the Rightmove House Price Index, the average property asking price was £232,241 last month. This was down from £236,332 in July, with oversupply to blame.

OVER-PRICED: Despite the recession, property is still too expensive for first-time buyers, according to some analysts

Job insecurity replaces finance as main worry

THE ability to obtain a mortgage is no longer perceived as large a barrier to homeownership as it was in March, according to new research.

There has been a seven percentage point decline in the number of consumers who feel access to finance as a barrier to homeownership, according to a Building Societies Association survey.

Lack of job security and fears over the future of house prices are among prospective homebuyers' main concerns, the survey indicates.

BSA head of mortgage policy Paul Broadhead said: "It is clear that concerns about future falls in property prices are having a significant impact on consumer confidence."

"Job security remains a barrier to house purchase and is likely to remain so until there is greater confidence in the strength of the economy."

Recent figures from Communities and Local Government indicated that house prices increased by 8.4 per cent in the 12 months to July.

CLEAN SHEET: Lance Cronin battled back from Bradford blunder

Cronin proves team are safe in his hands

LANCE Cronin was delighted to keep a clean sheet and bounce back against Burton a week after receiving criticism for an error against Bradford that cost Gills a point.

The 25-year-old was blamed by manager Andy Hessenthaler for Bradford's late winner, scored when the goalkeeper was out-jumped by Steve Williams in injury time.

Cronin was under the spotlight against Burton, but pulled off two excellent saves in the first-half which gave Gillingham a platform to go on and win the game.

FOOTBALL

The former Ebbsfleet goalkeeper credited the performance to keeping a level head, regardless of the circumstances.

He said: "Over the last couple of years I've tried to get into the mentality where if I make a mistake it's just one of those things.

"I go out there every week putting in 100 per cent and if it goes well, it goes well, and if it doesn't you've just got to keep working hard.

"I came in on Monday and tried to get it out of my head and went into the [Burton] game as I would any other, with confidence, and luckily it's paid off."

With last season's number one Alan Julian fully recovered from a broken hand, Hessenthaler had a decision to make on Saturday, but claimed in his mind it was never in doubt.

He said: "It wasn't a tough one for me, I was always going to play Lance. He kept a clean sheet and fair play to him. I've got a lot of faith in the boy, he can only get better."

FOOTBALL

King close to ending long-term injury hell

MORE than 14 months after last kicking a ball in anger, Gillingham defender Simon King is closing in on a long-awaited return to full training.

The 27-year-old has been on the sidelines since a suffering a serious ankle injury in a pre-season game at Bromley in July last year. After several setbacks following surgery a year ago, the talented centre-back is now patiently nearing a return and is hoping to be back in full training within five weeks.

Gills boss Andy Hessenthaler, who played with King at Barnet and recommended the centre-back to his predecessor Ronnie Jepson, was delighted with the news.

He said: "That's a boost. We're buzzing with that because all of a sudden it could be like signing a new player, so probably Christmas time we could have a brand new player. That's good news and would give everyone a lift in the changing room.

"We'll keep our fingers crossed because we have to be cautious, but it would be lovely to see him back on that training ground. I've played with the lad, I know what quality he brings and he's certainly got the hunger to come back and play."

Hess happy to 'win ugly' as Gills grind out win over Albion

IF WINNING games while not playing at your best is the mark of a good side, then Gillingham's hard-fought win against Burton Albion on Saturday gave cause for cautious optimism.

As manager Andy Hessenthaler correctly pointed out afterwards, his side had performed better on several occasions this season and not won. It will mean little without a sustained improvement in form, but it was as encouraging as the more stylish win against Shrewsbury a fortnight earlier because it is impossible to get promoted without finding a way to grind out results.

Hessenthaler was pleased to "win ugly" and believes the criticism his side have received for an unexpectedly slow start to the campaign has had a bonding effect on the players.

"They are together, I would know in the dressing room if they weren't together but they are fighting for each other," he said. "That's what you've got to do if we are going to achieve anything.

"People write you off after eight games, saying 'they should be at the top of the table' because we were made one of the favourites to go up. Maybe that's what we want, for people to write us off.

"We don't mind the tag of favourites, we should have been with the squad and budget we've got. We're not at the moment, but I think patience is a big word. I'll be patient with the players as long as they keep performing."

The main selection debate ahead of Saturday's game was in goal, with the Gills boss declining to recall a fit-again Alan Julian in favour of keeping faith with Lance Cronin, whose late error cost the side a point at Bradford a week earlier.

It took the stopper just six minutes to justify his inclusion, producing a brilliant reflex save when John McGrath's shot took a wicked deflection off Richard Walker. He also made another superb save from Shaun Harrad late in the half, getting fingertips to the striker's exquisite lob.

Gillingham were fortunate not to be behind heading into half-time, but they responded well. Cody McDonald, who hit the crossbar late in the first-half, made amends by nodding in Chris Palmer's 50th-minute free-kick, the on-loan striker's first goal for the club.

From then on the home side looked the more likely to score, but in the end had to settle for a narrow margin of victory.

Hessenthaler handed Bruce Inkango his debut, although the Gills boss revealed the French striker was panicking earlier in the day. "He said 'the gaffer's going to tell me off if I don't have a suit' so the kit man's given him the suit they had from Wembley," Hessenthaler said. "I could see he was nervous, he wanted to pass it but we don't want him to pass it in the final third, go and get people off their seats. There's more to come from him."

The aim was to build on the victory when Southend visited last night, log on to www.yourmedway.co.uk for the report and reaction.
